

On Being Crazy

In pairs

Exercise

1. The text contains five different passages with dialogues between the narrator and the people he meets. Read these passages aloud to each other, one being the narrator, the other being the people he meets.

Questions

- What type of narrator do we meet in the text? What do we know about him?
- Who does the narrator meet on his way?
- Compare these encounters with the ones Markus has.
- Throughout the text, the white man sees himself as very different from the black man. Which differences are pointed out?
 - Are there any such differences pointed out in the "Shades of Color"-scene?
- Comment on the tone of the text, and compare it to the "Shades of Color"-scene.
